ABOUT US

The State of Pennsylvania is divided by Commonwealth Libraries into 29 geographic regions called districts. Within each district, the State Librarian designates one library as the District Center. The James V. Brown Library, in Williamsport, is the District Center for the North Central Library District. James V. Brown Library provides support services to 40 state-aided libraries in 45 facilities across an 11-county area in north central Pennsylvania. The North Central Library District is the largest geographic district in the state. It is comprised of 4 federated systems, 2 consolidated systems, and 7 independent libraries.
